WELCOME SUMMER STUDENTS!

MAYOR EXTENDS GREETINGS TO ALL

Urges Close Harmony

To the Summer School Students of Bowling Green State University

As Mayor of Bowling Green, and in behalf of its citizens, I extend to you a very cordial welcome to our city and to Bowling Green State University. We are not only proud of both these institutions, but we are happy to have you here to enjoy the educational, recreational, and religious facilities they afford.

We invite you to be guests of our homes, attendants of our churches, and participants in all our social activities to the end that your stay here will be of mutual benefit and pleasure to us all. And we trust that you will avail yourselves of the best that we have to offer so that your attendance here will be one of profit and advantage to you, and that upon leaving you will be better men and women for having spent this summer in our midst.

Again we welcome you to both our city and our university.

ALVA W. BACHMAN

Rev. Fisher Addresses Graduates

The first graduating exercises of the institution as a University, but the twenty-second June graduating service of the institution was held Monday, June 8, for a class of two hundred and twenty-nine.

The academic procession formed at the library, marching to the Assembly hall under the able direction of Prof. D. J. Crowley in the following order: Graduating Sophomores; B. S. in Education; A. B. of the Arts College; Faculty, Deans, Clergymen; Trustees; President H. B. Williams and Dr. F. B. Fisher. Excellent music by faculty and students of the music department charmed a large audience.

Rev. Frederick B. Fisher, Ph. D., S. T. D., LL. D., pastor of the Central Methodist Episcopal Church in Detroit, gave the address, using as his title, "Living in the Modern World".

Dr. F. B. Fisher

You are facing a world totally different than one I faced 30 years ago. You must have a philosophy and gigantic breadth far greater than I did. There are many philosophies which are conflicting today.

The old American culture has rapidly changed. There is no

DR. WILLIAM'S PORTRAIT PAINTED

Formally Presented at Commencement

"An institution is the length and shadow of one man."

Thus quoting Ralph Waldo Emerson, Dr. J. R. Overman, dean of the College of Liberal Arts at Bowling Green State University, initiated the ceremonies whereby a lasting and excellent portrait of Homer B. Williams, Ph. D., president of the local educational institution since its beginning in 1912, was presented to the University June 8 as a part of the commencement program.

"Already that shadow is a long one. Other men will follow, but this school, which I have grown to love so much, will always bear the stamp of this man. He not only served it but he created it."

"The institution is Dr. Williams. Dr. Williams is the institution. They are inseparable."

"Fortunately the one is of mortar and brick and is permanent. Unfortunately the other is not and will not be with us always."

Explaining that a lasting portrait was to be presented as a memorial to Bowling Green's one and only President, Dean Overman introduced Walter Rohrs, chairman of the committee to secure funds for the project, who gave a brief history of the matter and Miss Linda Dill, who presented the work of art to the campus.

Supt. F. J. Prout, of Sandusky, president of the Board of Trustees, accepted the portrait expressing gratitude of the institution for the thoroughness and great work of Dr. Williams during his many years of service for the University.

George Dinckel, of Toledo, the artist, was presented and modestly said, "An artist expresses himself better with a brush."

The unveiled portrait was accepted with thunderous applause by the audience; and Dr. Williams in his characteristic modest manner accepted the tributes bestowed upon him, expressing his gratitude at the honor.

ERNEST HESSER GOES TO N. Y. U.

Mr. Ernest Hesser, who was first in the B. G. S. U. music department, will become Head of the Department of Music at New York University next year. His intervening positions between his headship here and the new one at New York have been as supervisor of music at Albany, N. Y.; Indianapolis, Ind.; and Cincinnati, Ohio. The Bowling Green faculty is planning a luncheon for Mr. Hesser soon.

Many Sign For Music

A number of students are choosing and have chosen the elective course in Music Appreciation under Prof. McEwen, given only during the summer term. Students from all the courses find much pleasure and profit in the class. An immediate enjoyment and contribution to music appreciation at a later time is realized from such a course.

Baccalaureate Sermon Given By Dr. Cole

The Baccalaureate sermon delivered Sunday, June 7, by Dr. Walton E. Cole, of the First Unitarian Church of Toledo was very impressive. His subject was "A Balanced Life".

Dr. Cole stressed the idea of Plato "Nothing in excess." It should have both religion and science, both intellect and emotion, both the head and the heart.

Out of the barrage of oratory that is coming in the next few months the American people will have to be more sane than ever before in trying to pick out the facts from the hokum. It will require straight, clear thinking.

There is a threat to the democratic ideal today. No matter what we think, we should be given a perfect right to think

MANY EXPECTED FOR SUMMER TERM

The indications are very favorable for a record attendance this summer. Dormitory reservations, inquiries both by correspondence and personal calls at the office have been unusually numerous. This interest is easily accounted for by the added opportunities offered for post graduate study; the opening of the Business Administration College; special courses in music, athletics, English, industrial arts, science, education, and philosophy.

Ockerman To Teach

Mr. Ockerman, whose name does not appear in the summer bulletin, will be in charge of certain of the Physical Education classes for the summer class. No new classes will be added, but the work will be divided among the three coaches, Mr. Landis, Mr. Steller, and Mr. Ockerman.

PRES. WILLIAMS ISSUES FORMAL WELCOME

Many Alumni Return

Expressions that I have taken in other years have shown that a preponderance of our summer enrollment is due to the return of former students. This condition promises to be more prominent this year owing to the addition of graduate work to the offerings of the University. Summer sessions generally have decreased or remained stationary in enrollment for the last few years. Salaries have been reduced and delayed, certification requirements have not been advanced, and professional morale has suffered. This year conditions are better. The times are more prosperous, the demand for teachers is improving and the new certification regulations in this state are an incitement to the desire for professional advancement.

The University is flattered, justly I hope, by the loyalty of its alumni and students. It is striving to expand and thus be in position to continue to serve those who have finished their undergraduate work as well as those who are beginning their work here. The term opening this week will be the occasion for renewing and extending friendships formed in other years and it will result in the formation of many new acquaintances. It is my earnest hope that this summer may be a happy and profitable one for all the group—faculty and students—who may gather here.

Firemen's Convention This Week

Bowling Green is going to assume a Mardi Gras atmosphere—for an entire week—starting next Monday and continuing to Saturday night.

The week-long celebration has been planned by the fire department. Two days of the program will be utilized to hold the 63rd annual convention of the Northwestern Ohio Volunteer Fire Department Association.

Decorations, to be on Main street, from Clough to Court streets, and on Wooster street, from Church to Prospect, will be placed by a Kenton decorating company. This was finished Saturday night.

No traffic will be allowed inside the designated area as the space will be filled with carnival booths and other equipment. At the intersection of two great

The Master's Degree . .

There are between thirty and forty different kinds of Master's degrees granted in this country. Nearly all the great fields of learning recognize the degree: arts, sciences, business administration, engineering, law, theology, architecture, medicine, public health, and public administration. Nearly twenty thousand Masters' degrees were granted by American universities and colleges in 1932. More than a thousand were granted in the field of engineering. The degree is no longer an exceptional matter; it is rather one of the great educational folkways of the country.

The practical significance of this growth in the popularity of the Master's work is of course readily seen. In some lines of work the degree is becoming a prerequisite for promotion in rank and salary. This is the truth in educational work, even in the smaller centers. Young people who aim to make teaching a life career simply have to recognize the fact and govern themselves accordingly.

The educational significance of the movement to add a year to the traditional college work is not so easily understood. When large numbers of students enter a particular field of learning, institutionalization rapidly takes place. Standards begin to take detailed and rigid forms; residence requirements, credits, oral examinations, theses, and the like are prescribed; and the original aims and spirit of the movement degenerate into the meeting of mathematical specifications. This is the great danger just now to the Master's work.

Bowling Green State University realizes this danger, and it purposes to guard itself against it. It is clearly recognized that certain definite standards have to be adopted; but it is also clearly recognized that a certain breadth of knowledge, a certain facility in the use of the tools of advanced learning, and a certain appreciation of intellectual values are necessary to warrant the granting of a Master's degree. The University does not purpose to make the requirements unreasonable, nor does it purpose to grant the degree automatically when thirty semester hours of course credits and a fifty-page thesis are presented by candidates.

A year's work beyond the bachelor's degree ought to be the source of great pleasure to students and it ought to add considerable power of independent and creative thought. It ought to increase professional and social efficiency. The whole spirit of the work should radiate a certain degree of maturity and a certain capacity of self-direction. In no other way can a graduate student gain true satisfaction from the work.

—Clayton C. Kohl

Dr. D. March
Pres. Of Alumni

At one of the largest gatherings of the alumni association of Bowling Green State University Saturday night, Dr. Dallas E. March, of this city, was elected president and therefore became the first member of his profession to ever hear the graduates of the local institution.

Other officers elected were Ervin Kreischer, vice president; Donna Rae Cameron, secretary; Mrs. E. E. Richards, treasurer. The executive committee will be as follows: Mrs. R. B. Waugh, Paul Roller, John Moore, Clement Premo, and Mrs. Mildred Rothe.

Wilbur Rider, acting as toastmaster, completed the year as president of the body in fine style. The banquet was held in Shatzel Hall with more than 100 present, 58 of them being members of the graduating class.

A few official reports were followed by brief remarks by Prof. E. C. Powell and an enjoyable initiation process for the graduates. A number of selections by the University woodwind quartet were greatly enjoyed.

The program was concluded by a period of community singing by the group led by Will Jansen, accompanied by Arlene Gill.

Fishin' Days

Give me a rowboat, a couple of oars, and a sunshine bright overhead. Fetch me some bait, and some fisherman's stores, and some ham and a loaf of rye bread.

Point to the spot where the fishin' is fair, and give the old rowboat a shove. Grant me the strength just to row there myself, so I'll be in the life I love.

Plunk! goes the anchor. I'm settled at last, and I wiggle a worm on a hook. Swish through the air, and a line is soon cast. A bobber is riding the brook.

Run along, world, 'cause I'm busy just now—busy at loafin' and such. Sure I can fish, for I've always known how, but the fishes aren't bitin'—not much.

Might just as well take it easy a spell, and sneak me a half hour's snooze. Can't miss a lot, for it seems, at this spot, that there ain't any fishes to lose.

Say, where's the sun? Why, the night time's begun. I've slept all the afternoon through. True, fishin, is slick, but if I'd my pick, why I'd rather just sleep—wouldn't you?

highways, Dixie (25) and Roosevelt (6), a merry-go-round will pass in an endless circle for the entertainment of the huge crowds expected to descend upon the city for the convention and other parts of the week's program.

Detour signs are being erected which will send traffic around on side streets.

At a meeting, the firemen discussed the arrangements and reported that pre-convention plans are progressing nicely. They also held a drill for the big parade Wednesday afternoon.

The route for the huge parade in which the visiting firemen will participate, was decided upon. The parade will form on Church street, moving south to Washington, east to Prospect, north to Wooster, east to Thurston, north to Court, and west to the court house where the results of the prize contest will be made.

Recreation Program
Planned For Summer

The Physical Education department will offer its complete facilities to students during the summer term with weekly contests in archery, tennis, softball, and the like. All students interested in this recreation program should sign up for these sports immediately. A real summer's play is in store for you in addition to the regular courses offered by this department.

Darke County Organizes B. G. Boosters

Wednesday evening, June 10, a group of Bowling Green State University students and alumni met at the city park in Greenville, Ohio, for a picnic and general county get-together meeting. The main purpose of the event was to organize a club of university students and alumni into a nucleus of Bowling Green boosters. Even though Darke County is some distance away, it was found that there has been a sizeable group of 30 to 40 students who have attended Bowling Green. After the picnic supper Miss Ruth Howell, acting as Chairman, called on Mr. W. C. Jordan for remarks. Mr. Jordan briefly commented upon the importance of such a movement to the University and pointed out that as the students live up more nearly to university standards, they become more proud of their Alma Mater and subsequently will draw more and better student material from the county to the University. He also commented on what seemed to be a definite cultural growth at the University in the last few years as indicated by the establishment of national chapters of professional fraternities, and perhaps by the organization of the student council. Remarks from other members of the group were followed by the election of the following officers: President, Miss Grace Katzenberger, of Greenville; Vice-president, Miss Irene Hofacker, of Pittsburg; Secretary-treasurer, Miss Ruth Howell, of Greenville. The group of officers were voted to constitute the executive committee of the association.

After singing a few University songs, the meeting adjourned with a strong desire to make the organization a dynamic recruiting device for the good students of the county as well as a means of fostering a wholesome alumni spirit within the organization. The new organization decided to take the name of "Bowling Green State University Club of Darke County". Those present from Greenville were Miss Grace Katzenberger, Miss Ruth Howell, Miss Mary Alice Hawley, Mrs. Margaret Folkerth Unger and daughter Marcella; Mary Flor-

Prof. Holt To Offer Tour

Many attractive and worthwhile stops have been planned for the 2,600 mile New England-New York City and State tour to be conducted by Prof. Holt in August. For those interested in the industrial aspects of this region there will be tours of a model coal mine in Pennsylvania and numerous plants manufacturing munitions, paper, metal, rubber, shoes, etc. For scenic-lovers there is a complete tour of Niagara Falls, Watkins Glen, Palisades State Park, and the lake and mountain scenery of the White, the Green, the Adirondacks, and the Catskill mountains.

The historical-minded may be more pleased on the trip to West Point, New Bedford, Mass., Provincetown, Mass., Hartford, Conn., Plymouth, Mass., and other famous New England towns. Everyone will enjoy the two day's stay in both New York City and Boston. Many other attractions have been carefully planned under the capable and experienced direction of Prof. Holt.

Few places are left unfilled and so interested persons should make reservations at once. For further information see Prof. Holt in Room 303, Science building.

and express those thoughts as we wish on the platform or printed page.

One has no right to discard emotions. We need the greatest tide of emotional sensitivity. "Beauty is a smile on the face of truth."

Many truths have controlled the life of the past but let us not be blind to the constant changes in life. Let us have open minds toward the future.

There should be a balance between tolerance and conviction. Besides being able to see the other fellows' side of a problem, we should have very firm convictions on our own side of the matter. Much tolerance in religion is due to lack of conviction. That is one of the problems of the clergy.

There should be individual freedom as well as a close social order. More collectivism is coming, to be sure, but we must not forget the individual in the progress of society.

I believe in the possibility of a democratic life to emerge from the problems of the world.

At the conclusion of the service the graduates and their parents and relatives met members of the University faculty on the lawn back of the Administration building at an informal reception.

distinct culture in the world today. For centuries there were Indian, Buddhist, Confucian and other disciplinary cultures.

Then for 1500 years a Christian culture held Europe. In early America there was a Puritan culture. But today there is no distinct culture in the world.

By our Christian conquests in the world, these old cultures have been broken, both with gains and losses. Even the Puritan culture is split wide open.

You today are going to have to study the various cultural influences and decide what you are going to do. This is a world of conflict.

Look out for biological nationalism. War was bad enough when it was between two peoples of the same race, but let war come along blood lines or deep cultural lines and we will have war to the death.

Russia, Germany, Italy in their philosophies are bidding for the youth of the world. Even in France's latest election it is a form of social coercion which is victorious.

In the middlewest 60 per cent of the farm mortgages are controlled by the government. That is exactly the way Russia gained control of the people.

That is the danger of a central control of individual properties.

I would never urge any boy to go to war to join sanctions to aid any country to control any territories. The whole philosophy of imperialism is wrong.

Imperialism can only be maintained by impoverishing the conquered nations ever more. The wealth of those nations is taken to their conquerors lands.

Japan is rising up to lead the yellow race. The Chinese are slowly beginning to see it. They see the Japanese leadership as beneficial and wonder what is worse, Japanese imperialism or British or white imperialism.

The brown race may rise up led by the Japanese and when those things happen you will have a vast hegemony against the whites in a biological nationalistic way.

At a peace conference a Chinese student got up one time at Geneva and spoke for two hours, interrupting me in my closing address saying you whites want peace now because you own everything. You own through military conquest all the gold, silver, ore and minerals of the world. A black man in South Africa may not own land. You changed the name of his country, you changed the names of his places.

This Chinese student, an A. B. from Peking, an M. A. from Oxford, a Ph. D. from Columbia, said, "I'm not so sure we Orientals want peace until we can see whether we can unite with bayonets and see whether we can tear out the white man's guts and in doing what he did to us, win back our wealth."

We whites have so impoverished the other parts of the world that we have made world trade for us impossible and have made a market for Japan's cheaply made goods.

Stalin's philosophy of stark materialism is that they make masses of people just like masses of steel. They force the moronic mass of people into the kind of mankind they want.

In Germany the youth of the country are being led in a biological idea of national control, even into believing that Jesus Christ was not a Jew, but a Teuton born in Palestine.

For that reason I have been astounded at the blasé attitude and indifference of the American youth. We must build up a rising American defense mechanism which is opposed to these movements or we can never avoid military philosophy of national coercion.

Our whole idea of American education is to probe and find the truth and a free method of gaining that end.

Any unity that we get in this country must be voluntary. There is a four-fold platform which could come by that method. Idealism, personalism, co-operation, non violation or non-resistance are the philosophies to build.

Go on, go on. There is something greater in the world. You are not allowed to stop. Go and find it. As Kipling said "Something lost and waiting for you beyond the range. Go!"

Men who smile at women's clubs probably don't know the amount of serious work that the women's clubs do.

Ind. Arts Head Visits Indiana Institutions

Last week, Prof. D. J. Crowley in company with Robert M. Keck, a former graduate of the University and now teaching Industrial Arts in the California State Teachers' College at California, Pennsylvania, visited the Industrial Arts departments of Miami University at Oxford, Ohio, and the Indiana State Teachers Colleges at Muncie and Terre Haute for the purpose of studying the equipment layout and course offerings in industrial arts at each institution visited. A brief call was also made at the University of Indiana at Bloomington where they were received by Dr. Melvin Lewis who is in charge of grade work in industrial arts. The heads of the departments at each of the institutions visited are members of the Mississippi Valley Manual Arts Conference and well known to Mr. Crowley who has been a member of the conference since 1922.

The world is not interested greatly in the troubles of your college career—the question is, will you make good later in life?

The man who has an inflated idea of his own importance usually finds that the community has him sized up as he would look after deflation.

Easy Tests Denounced

An unusual complaint in the way of a protest against easy tests was received in one of the departments at the end of last semester. A realization of the need for more exacting work doubtless points to the fact that more mature students are being attracted to the University. A fitting growth is marked in the replacing of immature minds with earnest students.
